

Three Travelers

Once upon a time, three travelers were walking. It was night on their way, and they had no place to remain. Suddenly they saw a miniature house, and they knocked. The owner opened the door and asked: Who are you? They answered: We are health, love, and wealth, please be kind to us and let us in, we have nowhere to spend the night. The owner looked at them and said: It's a pity but we barely have one free seat, I will go and advise my family which one of you I should let in.

The ill mother said: Let's let health in. The young daughter offered to let in love, the wife - wealth. They argued for a long time, the moon was already shining in the sky and a cold wind was blowing.

The travelers did not wait for their answer on the cold street and went to the house where they were welcome.

So in our life, while we argue about what is more important to us and what we need, someone is already living our happy life.